Happy Hour (Denver)

This fundraising event can be held in conjunction with a local watering hole in the city to raise money for a local low-income Catholic School.

The event typically offers 5-7 silent auction items for patrons to bid on, free food, happy hour drink prices, and a "giving tree" decorated with items worth $5.00-50.00 requested by teachers at the school.

Denver Advocates chair Sarah Grey reports, "This is a very easy event to host because it requires minimal work for the Advocates, it's really fun and a great chance for the staff of the school to mingle with younger local Catholic School supporters. Each time we have hosted this event, we have raised over $1000 for the school and also dropped off bags full of items purchased from the giving tree. One of the reasons this event is so successful is because it provides the chance for young adults in the area to help support schools, people who may not be able to attend the other "big ticket" fundraisers the schools have."
